

Production, processing,
logistic service and marketing
for fruit and vegetables

Stay fresh up to date
on all the latest stories
with our free news feeds

Americas Change edition: Europe Asia | Home Contact Us Site Map

Search Fruitnet.com

Categories

List latest content

RSS Feeds (What's this?)

Fruit

Vegetables

Companies

Interests

Comment & Analysis

Convenience

Economy

Environment

Events

Fairtrade & CSR

Food Safety & Certification

Marketing

Organics

Packaging & Technology

People

Production & Trade

Research & Development

Retail & Distribution

Transport & Logistics

Wholesale

Countries

Americas

Asia

Europe, Middle East & Africa

Anguilla

Antigua and Barbuda

Argentina

Bahamas

Barbados

Belize

Paul Begala to address policy conference

Gill McShane | 03 June 2009 | Print | Download | Comment | Share

The CNN analyst and former Clinton aide is one of many highlights scheduled for the largest annual produce event in Washington DC

The United Fresh Produce Association has announced that popular CNN analyst, Democratic political strategist and senior Clinton White House aide Paul Begala will speak before United Fresh's 2009 Washington Public Policy Conference on 9-11 September at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington DC.

Mr Begala will share his entertaining insights into the Obama Administration and the overall political landscape during the annual fall gathering's closing luncheon.

"As this shapes up to be one of the busiest legislative years for the produce industry in recent memory, it's more important than ever to empower and enable our members to get involved in the process of advancing policy in Washington," said United Fresh president and CEO Tom Stenzel.

The 2009 Washington Public Policy Conference will focus on a number of key issues, including the promotion of a sound, science-based food safety policy, unwavering opposition to eliminating the secret ballot in workplace elections, and promoting the availability of salad bars in schools across the US.

"These are critical issues to our industry, and demand a strong total produce industry voice," Mr Stenzel said. "We're counting on the largest gathering ever of industry members across the supply chain to come together in Washington to make their individual voices heard, so that together we deliver a 'united' voice to our nation's leaders."

"Unlock the Future of Produce" is the theme for this year's conference, and as part of the program, attendees at this year's conference will take part in a busy three days of advocacy and networking including:

Capitol Hill Visits: Conference attendees will visit face-to-face with more than 140 Members of Congress and their staffs, addressing industry policy priorities.

FDA Town Hall Meeting: Attendees will visit the FDA's College Park, Md. headquarters for a town hall discussion on food safety and other issues facing the produce industry.

White House Briefing: Attendees will have the opportunity to attend a private briefing by Obama Administration officials, gaining insight into the president's policies on food safety, agricultural labor, trade and more.

Fresh Festival: A long-time Congressional tradition, United Fresh will again host the annual Fresh Festival on Capitol Hill in the historic Cannon Caucus Room, offering lawmakers and officials a flavorful sampling of the best the produce industry has to offer.

The 2009 conference is co-chaired by representatives of the four United Fresh Market Segment Boards, including: Fred Williamson, Andrew & Williamson Fresh Produce, Grower-Shipper Board; Jan Berk, San Miguel Produce, Inc., Fresh-Cut Processor Board;

Related Articles

New pest discovery in California

US passes landmark food safety reform

Food safety bill up for second vote

Coastline and RedLine announce PTI pilot

Dole goes 'Bananas!' over documentary

Food safety group to target key fresh produce

Wegmans issues pepper warning

California now free of fruit fly

USDA outlines Florida citrus proposal

Dole aiming to overturn pesticide rulings

Tags

No Tags Available

Add your own

Free newsletter:

Most: Read Emailed

1. Dole and Chiquita in Angolan talks
2. American shipping services undergo changes
3. IFST unveils revamped website
4. Zespri sales maintain small lead
5. CMA CGM joins rate hike trend
6. Record Q3 earnings for Metro
7. INTTRA reports container demand growth
8. Vietnam sends durian to US
9. Second-quarter sales dip for Wal-Mart
10. Delhaize reports energy improvement

Brendan Comito, Capital City Fruit Company, Inc., Wholesaler-Distributor Board, and Mitch Smith, McDonald's Corporation, Retail-Foodservice Board.

"Whether you're a Capitol Hill veteran or a first-timer, a family business or a publicly-traded corporation, a small grower or a multinational, you belong to this produce team," said United Fresh chairman Jim Lemke of CH Robinson Worldwide. "This conference unites us as an industry, and we invite all industry members to see how powerful we can be when we work together."

No comments posted currently.

Comment on this article :

You are not currently logged in, or you are not a subscriber.

Send to a friend :

- Your first name:
- Your surname:
- Your email address:
- Friend's first name:
- Friend's surname:
- Friend's email address:
- Message subject line:
- Your message: